MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends and Supporters:

1980 has been a very active year at the Fort Mason Center, and as a supporter and interested individual we felt you might like to know of our progress and accomplishments. Although this is the first such report from us, we intend to continue making these reports to our supporters on a regular basis in our monthly calendar. This report is an effort to keep you up-to-date on what your support has helped make possible.

The most important achievement this year has been reaching a position of financial self-sufficiency for our general operation. In fact, our fiscal 1981 operating budget of $370,000 is based on use fees paid by resident groups, non-resident organizations, special events, such as the Pacific States Crafts Fair, the KQED Auction and the New Earth Expo, and Friends of Fort Mason memberships. As Fort Mason Center grows in public recognition, and more organizations want to produce events here in our activity spaces, our Conference Center, and Piers 2 and 3, our financial stability will steadily strengthen. This is enabling us to focus our fund-raising efforts in the direction of capital improvements.

During this past year, we held an Architectural Master Plan Competition, and selected the firm of Robinson, Mills and Williams, in collaboration with the SWA Group, to work on a design prospectus for the Fort Mason Center. This work has now been completed, and we will have the prospectus printed soon. It will be used in our Capital Fund Drive, which the Board of Directors has approved as our principle fund-raising activity over the next three years.

During the past year, we have opened our Fort Mason Conference Center. We renovated an old garage space in Building "A" with grants from the Cowell Foundation, the Crocker Trust and Levi Strauss Foundation. It is being used by a wide range of organizations and is rapidly becoming a very popular conference facility.

The renovations we have made in Piers 2 and 3, which make these facilities available for major exhibitions, along with the development of our Conference Center and a general upgrade in our activity spaces, enables us to generate a quality and balance program which not only appeals to residents of the Bay Area, but visitors as well.

The number of resident organizations in Fort Mason Center has grown to over 40 during the past year. These organizations and the hundreds of non-resident groups which present classes, performances, exhibits and conferences here combine to produce over 400 events per month. In 1980, over 900,000 people will attend the more than 5,000 free or low-cost activities presented here, including the Exhibition of the People's Republic of China.

The past year has seen increased involvement of our Board of Directors, especially in evidence through work done by our Facilities, Finance, Program and Development Committees.

Our staff has been reorganized, and now has a clear idea of the role which we play in the continued development of Fort Mason Center.

After two years as Administrative Director and Associate Director, I was appointed Executive Director at the August Board of Directors Meeting. I believe we are entering a very exciting period of our development, and that we have defined our responsibilities and objectives clearly and realistically.

If you have any questions about our current situation, or would like to visit the Center to see what has happened here recently, please call us for information.

Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Marc Kasky
Executive Director

FT. MASON NEIGHBORHOOD OPEN HOUSE

Fort Mason Center, San Francisco's largest Community Cultural Center, located in the Marina District at the intersections of Buchanan & Marina Blvd., is hosting an Open House for residents of the Marina District, November 2, from 1-3PM in the Conference Center in Building A.

Marc Kasky, Executive Director of the Center, feels that "establishing an interactive rapport with the families and businesses in the surrounding community is an important aspect of Fort Mason's responsibility as a good neighbor.

"As an active community cultural center we are keenly interested, sensitive and responsive to the attitudes and concerns of our neighbors and friends in the Marina District.

"With the growth of our activities here at Fort Mason Center, we feel that a more direct method of community feedback is vital to maintaining a congenial relationship with the community at large."

On hand for the Sunday Open House will be representatives from the Waste Water Sewage Project, the National Park Service, the Army, the Muni, Gashouse Cove Marina and organizations housed at Fort Mason. This is an open invitation to all interested parties in the Marina District. For more information or directions contact Fort Mason Center at 441-5706.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Hospital Audiences, Inc. is a non-profit agency that makes the arts and entertainment accessible to people in social service, rehabilitative and therapeutic agencies.

Through its Community Events Program, HAI acts as a clearing house for donated tickets that enable large audiences of children and adults with physical, emotional or mental handicaps to enjoy exciting performances of music, theatre, dance and other entertainment. But this program is volunteer dependent. HAI needs volunteer theatre escorts to meet our groups at the events (groups provide their own transportation), provide a friendly greeting, distribute and act as a liaison between the theatre, HAI and the attending groups. Besides free tickets for yourself and a guest, you get the satisfaction of helping a segment of the community that is too often forgotten and ignored.

If you are interested, please contact HAI at 776-9171 between 10AM and 2PM weekdays, or write to HAI, Bldg. C, Fort Mason, SF 94123.

BALA ART AUCTION

Bay Area Lawyers for the Arts (BALA) will hold an Art Auction at Fort Mason's Conference Center, Saturday and Sunday evenings, Dec. 6 & 7. BALA's board and staff of artists and lawyers is seeking donation of painting, sculpture, drawings, performances, supplies, services, collectables and delectables.

Prominent artists already pledging to donate work are Fletcher Benton, Toby Judith Klayman, Elio Benvenuto and Rolando Castellon. Many works are being donated through such Bay Area galleries as Maxwell, Tyser and Uptown Graphics. The Holy City Zoo nightclub has donated a performance by the comedy group, Anchovy Dacqueri, and items from Just Desserts and Fantasia Bakeries will go to the highest bidder.

BALA is a non-profit service that enables 1,500 artists each year to obtain legal advice and representation. BALA disseminates legal information to artists through its conferences and speakers bureau and publications written in plain English for the lay reader. A new pilot program of arbitration and mediation is aimed at resolving disputes out of court. The organization has also been instrumental in initiating or defending legislation to protect the rights of artists.

To make a tax-deductible donation to BALA's Art Auction, call 775-7200.
